

Table of Contents

A foreword and acknowledgments	7
The necessary mottos	9
Prelude
Introduction	13
Going beyond words
The nonverbal communicative culture: the human nonverbal (and mostly mute) messaging system	29
Body postures in nonverbal communication (body postures as elements of the overall bodily synergism sub-design)	31
Dance as a special human body posture	33
Eye contact in nonverbal communication (eye contact as an element of the facial dimension of the oro-facial sub-design)	42
Facial expressions in nonverbal communication (facial expressions as an element of the facial dimension of the oro-facial sub-design)	51
Laughing and crying in nonverbal communication (laughing and crying as the elements of the oro-facial sub-design)	75
Smiling: an attenuated extension of laughter	81
Crying	85
Gestures in nonverbal communication (the gestural dimension as an element of the manual sub-design)	90
A general classification of gestures	93
Touch in nonverbal communication (the touch dimension as an element of the manual sub-design)	108
Silence as nonverbal communication	123
Human olfactory communication	128
Taste as communication	135
Music as communication	139

Dress as communication	146
Colour as communication	156
The meaning of flowers in human communication	167
Other uses of colour in human communication: flags, banners, costumes, skin tanning	170
Monuments and memorials as communication (the construction dimension of the manual sub-design)	180
Architecture as communication (the construction dimension of the manual sub-design)	202
Closure
Final Conclusions	223
Bibliography	231
Index of Terms	265
List of Figures	271